Spelling Patterns

tion spelling pattern

1. Learn the words first. Make sure you know what each word means.
2. Test yourself by writing down each word correctly in the first column. Go over any mistakes.
3. Get someone to test you and write your answers in the second column. Go over any mistakes.

Look/Learn/Cover	Write/Check 1	Write/Check 2
agitation
ambition station imagination audition apparition
interruption affection
inspection junction
objection conversation emotion operation relaxation education production attention option accommodation deception
examination refrigeration collection situation exception revolution

Spelling Pattern Exercises

tion spelling pattern

1. You should know these words. If you make any mistakes please go over them to ensure your learning is secure.
2. These exercises are designed to test the spellings you have learnt, check your understanding and further enhance your vocabulary.

Exercise 1 – CLOZE test.

Fill in the missing letters to make the correct words.

Working Conditions in the Factory

One day last summer, Mr Jones, the manager, called for me. P r o d u c _____ i n the factory was down, and he took e x _ e p _____ to this. We had a c o n _ _ r s a _ _ _ _ about the s i t u a_____ and he asked me to carry out an i _ s p e c _ _ _ _. During my e _ a m i n a_____ I visited the a _ _ o m m o d a _ _ _ _ where the workers went for r e l a x a_____ _. I could tell that the air c o n d i _ _ _ _ i n g was not working because the room was very warm. When the workers returned to their work s t a _ _ _ _ s they were too sleepy to pay a t t e n _ _ _ _. This was causing i n t e _ _ u p t _ _ _ s in the flow of p r _ d u c _ _ _ _. The only o p _ _ _ _ was to get the air c o n d i _ _ _ _ i n g o p e r a _ _ _ _ a l again.

Exercise 2 – The words on the left are opposites of the words on the right. Complete the words on the right.

1. tightening r _ _ a x _ t _ _ n
2. heat up r _ f _ _ g _ r _ t _ _ _
3. approval o _ j _ _ t _ o n

Exercise 3 – The words on the left mean the same or nearly the same as the words on the right. Complete the words on the right.

1. annoyed a _ i t _ t _ _ _
2. housing a _ _ o m _ o _ a _ _ o n
3. feeling e _ _ t _ _ _
4. uprising _ e v _ l _ t _ o _

Exercise 4 – CLOZE sentences. Fill in the missing letters to complete each sentence.

1. Silence during the e x _ m _ n a _____.
2. Her s _ t _ a _ i o _ was dire.
3. He enjoyed their c o _ v _ r s _ _ i _ n.
4. She stopped at the j _ n _ t _ o _.
5. He passed his uniform i n _ _ e c _ i _ n.

Opposites 4 - Revision

You have learnt these harder words now do the following exercises.

What is the opposite of ebb? _____

What is the opposite of enemy? _____

What is the opposite of ever? _____

What is the opposite of fair-play? _____

Re-write these sentences using the opposite of the word in bold.

The giant was very tall.

The experiment was a success.

The words on the paper were very faint.

Fill in the gaps on the right to find the opposite of the word on the left.

exit _ n _ _ _ nce divide m_____ ly

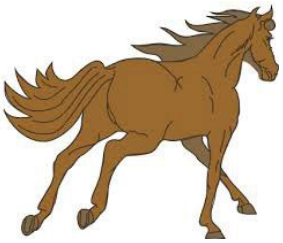
easy d _____ ul _

SCORE:

If you didn't get them all correct please revise Opposites 4.



Homophones

Some words are pronounced like other words but are different in spelling and meaning, e.g. mare and Mayor Tick off each word as you learn it please.

Gamble	To take a chance or bet on an outcome or result
Gambol	To skip, dance, play or frolic. Often applied to happy horses or ponies
Mayor	The elected official in charge of a town or city
Mare	A mature female horse
Principle	A guiding rule of conduct
Principal	A head of a school, or something of the highest importance
Raise	To lift up or elevate
Rays	Beams of light, the rays of the sun
Rap	To strike with a quick light blow
Wrap	To enclose an item in a covering
Sea	A large body of salt water
See	To view something, or understand something
Sole	The only one, or the bottom part of a shoe, or a type of fish
Soul	The spiritual part of human nature
Tear	Salty fluid secreted from the glands around the eye when crying
Tier	One of a number of sections, often one above the other, like a cake
Tied	Bound or fastened normally with cord or string
Tide	The regular rise and fall of large bodies of water such as oceans
Wood	The hard fibrous substance that lies beneath the bark of trees
Would	The conditional tense of will Choose the correct word from the pair to complete each sentence.

1. I saw the horse _____ in the field. gamble gambol
2. My brother heard a _____ on the door. rap wrap
3. The _____ was deep and dark blue. sea see
4. I stopped running because the _____ of my shoe came off. soul sole
5. There were over 3,000 trees in the _____ . would wood
6. My granny needs glasses to _____ . sea see
7. She could feel a _____ fall from her eye. tier tear
8. She wasn't sure if he _____ come. would wood

To complete each sentence below you need a pair of words from the list. Be sure to put each word in the right place.

9. The boat was _____ to the jetty and rising with the _____ .
10. As he went to _____ the fence he could feel the _____ of the sun on his back.

You should learn these off by heart.

17 Apostrophes

The Possessive Apostrophe

Plural Nouns

When a plural noun ends with an s, possession is shown by writing the ' after the s.

Examples: ladies' hats the girls' bicycles the boys' tent

Give the missing words:

1. A club for boys.
A _____ club.

2. A nest belonging to blackbirds.
The _____ nest.

3. The playground belonging to the girls.
The _____ playground.

4. The tails belonging to the monkeys.
The _____ tails.

5. The keyboards belonging to the computers.
The _____ keyboards.

6. A staffroom for teachers.
The _____ staffroom.

7. The barracks for the soldiers.
The _____ barracks.

8. The helmets for the miners.
The _____ helmets.

9. The cameras of the photographers.
The _____ cameras.

10. The cheers of the spectators.
The _____ cheers.

SCORE [ ]

18 Apostrophes

The Possessive Apostrophe

Plural Nouns

If the plural does not end with s, add 's as in the case of singular nouns.

examples

The women's institute.
The children's playgrounds.
The men's club.
The firemen's helmets.
The oxen's tails.

Extend these into your own full sentences.
Don't forget your full stop!

1. The women's gloves _____

_____

2. The children's paddling pool _____

_____

3. The policemen's whistles _____

_____

This is an important rule to remember.

Paired Reading 4: The Lost World by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

CHAPTER VIII
-THE OUTLYING PICKETS OF THE NEW WORLD -

The Lost World is a fantasy adventure novel originally published in several extracts within The Strand Magazine (1912). The narrator of the story, Edward Malone joins Professor Challenger on an expedition to the Amazon basin of South America where prehistoric animals are still alive. This extract follows the men as they begin their expedition and start to become accustomed to the sights and sounds of their new surroundings.

The very next day we did actually make our start upon this remarkable expedition. We found that all our possessions fitted very easily into the two canoes, and we divided our personnel, six in each, taking the obvious precaution in the interests of peace of putting one Professor into each canoe. Personally, I was with Challenger, who was in a beatific humour, moving about as one in a silent ecstasy and beaming benevolence from every feature. I have had some experience of him in other moods, however, and shall be the less surprised when the thunderstorms suddenly come up amidst the sunshine. If it is impossible to be at your ease, it is equally impossible to be dull in his company, for one is always in a state of half-tremulous doubt as to what sudden turn his formidable temper may take.

For two days we made our way up a good-sized river some hundreds of yards broad, and dark in colour, but transparent, so that one could usually see the bottom. The affluents of the Amazon are, half of them, of this nature, while the other half are whitish and opaque, the difference depending upon the class of country through which they have flowed. The dark indicate vegetable decay, while the others point to clayey soil. Twice we came across rapids, and in each case made a portage of half a mile or so to avoid them. The woods on either side were primeval, which are more easily penetrated than woods of the second growth, and we had no great difficulty in carrying our canoes through them. How shall I ever forget the solemn mystery of it? The height of the trees and the thickness of the boles exceeded anything which I in my town-bred life could have imagined, shooting upwards in magnificent columns until, at an enormous distance above our heads, we could dimly discern the spot where they threw out their side-branches into Gothic upward curves which coalesced to form one great matted roof of verdure, through which only an occasional golden ray of sunshine shot downwards to trace a thin dazzling line of light amidst the majestic obscurity. As we walked noiselessly amid the thick, soft carpet of decaying vegetation the hush fell upon our souls which comes upon us in the twilight of the Abbey, and even Professor Challenger's full- chested notes sank into a whisper. Alone, I should have been ignorant of the names of these giant growths, but our men of science pointed out the cedars, the great silk cotton trees, and the redwood trees, with all that profusion of various plants which has made this continent the chief supplier to the human race of those gifts of Nature which depend upon the vegetable world, while it is the most backward in those products which come from animal life. Vivid orchids and wonderful coloured lichens smouldered upon the swarthy tree-trunks and where a wandering shaft of light fell full upon the golden allamanda, the scarlet star-clusters of the tacsonia, or the rich deep blue of ipomaea, the effect was as a dream of fairyland. In these great wastes of forest, life, which abhors darkness, struggles ever upwards to the light. Every plant, even the smaller ones, curls and writhes to the green surface, twining itself round its stronger and taller brethren in the effort. Climbing plants are monstrous and luxuriant, but others which have never been known to climb elsewhere learn the art as an escape from that sombre shadow, so that the common nettle, the jasmine, and even the jacitara palm tree can be seen circling the stems of the cedars and striving to reach their crowns. Of animal life there was no movement amid the majestic vaulted aisles which stretched from us as we walked, but a constant movement far above our heads told of that multitudinous world of snake and monkey, bird and sloth, which lived in the sunshine, and looked down in wonder at our tiny, dark, stumbling figures in the obscure depths immeasurably below them. At dawn and at sunset the howler monkeys screamed together and the parrakeets broke into shrill chatter, but during the hot hours of the day only the full drone of insects, like the beat of a distant surf, filled the ear, while nothing moved amid the solemn vistas of stupendous trunks, fading away into the darkness which held us in. Once some bandy-legged, lurching creature, an ant- eater or a bear, scuttled clumsily amid the shadows. It was the only sign of earth life which I saw in this great Amazonian forest.

And yet there were indications that even human life itself was not far from us in those mysterious recesses. On the third day out we were aware of a singular deep throbbing in the air, rhythmic and solemn, coming and going fitfully throughout the morning. The two boats were paddling within a few yards of each other when first we heard it, and our Indians remained motionless, as if they had been turned to bronze, listening intently with expressions of terror upon their faces.

"What is it, then?" I asked.

"Drums," said Lord John, carelessly; "war drums. I have heard them before."

"Yes, sir, war drums," said Gomez, the half-breed. "Wild Indians, bravos, not mansos; they watch us every mile of the way; kill us if they can."

"How can they watch us?" I asked, gazing into the dark, motionless void.

The half-breed shrugged his broad shoulders.

"The Indians know. They have their own way. They watch us. They talk the drum talk to each other. Kill us if they can."

By the afternoon of that day—my pocket diary shows me that it was Tuesday, August 18th—at least six or seven drums were throbbing from various points. Sometimes they beat quickly, sometimes slowly, sometimes in obvious question and answer, one far to the east breaking out in a high staccato rattle, and being followed after a pause by a deep roll from the north. There was something indescribably nerve-shaking and menacing in that constant mutter, which seemed to shape itself into the very syllables of the half-breed, endlessly repeated, "We will kill you if we can. We will kill you if we can." No one ever moved in the silent woods. All the peace and soothing of quiet Nature lay in that dark curtain of vegetation, but away from behind there came ever the one message from our fellow-man. "We will kill you if we can," said the men in the east. "We will kill you if we can," said the men in the north.

All day the drums rumbled and whispered, while their menace reflected itself in the faces of our companions. Even the hardy, swaggering half-breed seemed cowed. I learned, however, that day once for all that both Summerlee and Challenger possessed that highest type of bravery, the bravery of the scientific mind. Theirs was the spirit which upheld Darwin among the gauchos of the Argentine or Wallace among the head-hunters of Malaya. It is decreed by a merciful Nature that the human brain cannot think of two things simultaneously, so that if it be steeped in curiosity as to science it has no room for merely personal considerations. All day amid that incessant and mysterious menace our two Professors watched every bird upon the wing, and every shrub upon the bank, with many a sharp wordy contention, when the snarl of Summerlee came quick upon the deep growl of Challenger, but with no more sense of danger and no more reference to drum-beating Indians than if they were seated together in the smoking-room of the Royal Society's Club in St. James's Street. Once only did they condescend to discuss them.

"Miranha or Amajuaca cannibals," said Challenger, jerking his thumb towards the reverberating wood.

"No doubt, sir," Summerlee answered. "Like all such tribes, I shall expect to find them of poly-synthetic speech and of Mongolian type."

"Polysynthetic certainly," said Challenger, indulgently. "I am not aware that any other type of language exists in this continent, and I have notes of more than a hundred. The Mongolian theory I regard with deep suspicion."

"I should have thought that even a limited knowledge of comparative anatomy would have helped to verify it," said Summerlee, bitterly.

Challenger thrust out his aggressive chin until he was all beard and hat-rim. "No doubt, sir, a limited knowledge would have that effect. When one's knowledge is exhaustive, one comes to other conclusions." They glared at each other in mutual defiance, while all round rose the distant whisper, "We will kill you—we will kill you if we can."

That night we moored our canoes with heavy stones for anchors in the centre of the stream, and made every preparation for a possible attack. Nothing came, however, and with the dawn we pushed upon our way, the drum-beating dying out behind us. About three o'clock in the afternoon we came to a very steep rapid, more than a mile long—the very one in which Professor Challenger had suffered disaster upon his first journey. I confess that the sight of it consoled me, for it was really the first direct corroboration, slight as it was, of the truth of his story. The Indians carried first our canoes and then our stores through the brushwood, which is very thick at this point, while we four whites, our rifles on our shoulders, walked between them and any danger coming from the woods. Before evening we had successfully passed the rapids, and made our way some ten miles above them, where we anchored for the night. At this point I reckoned that we had come not less than a hundred miles up the tributary from the main stream.

It was in the early forenoon of the next day that we made the great departure. Since dawn Professor Challenger had been acutely uneasy, continually scanning each bank of the river. Suddenly he gave an exclamation of satisfaction and pointed to a single tree, which projected at a peculiar angle over the side of the stream.

"What do you make of that?" he asked.

"It is surely an Assai palm," said Summerlee.

"Exactly. It was an Assai palm which I took for my landmark. The secret opening is half a mile onwards upon the other side of the river. There is no break in the trees. That is the wonder and the mystery of it. There where you see light-green rushes instead of dark-green undergrowth, there between the great cotton woods, that is my private gate into the unknown. Push through, and you will understand."

It was indeed a wonderful place. Having reached the spot marked by a line of light-green rushes, we poled out two canoes through them for some hundreds of yards, and eventually emerged into a placid and shallow stream, running clear and transparent over a sandy bottom. It may have been twenty yards across, and was banked in on each side by most luxuriant vegetation. No one who had not observed that for a short distance reeds had taken the place of shrubs, could possibly have guessed the existence of such a stream or dreamed of the fairyland beyond.

For a fairyland it was—the most wonderful that the imagination of man could conceive. The thick vegetation met overhead, interlacing into a natural pergola, and through this tunnel of verdure in a golden twilight flowed the green, pellucid river, beautiful in itself, but marvellous from the strange tints thrown by the vivid light from above filtered and tempered in its fall. Clear as crystal, motionless as a sheet of glass, green as the edge of an iceberg, it stretched in front of us under its leafy archway, every stroke of our paddles sending a thousand ripples across its shining surface. It was a fitting avenue to a land of wonders. All sign of the Indians had passed away, but animal life was more frequent, and the tameness of the creatures showed that they knew nothing of the hunter. Fuzzy little black-velvet monkeys, with snow-white teeth and gleaming, mocking eyes, chattered at us as we passed. With a dull, heavy splash an occasional cayman plunged in from the bank. Once a dark, clumsy tapir stared at us from a gap in the bushes, and then lumbered away through the forest; once, too, the yellow, sinuous form of a great puma whisked amid the brushwood, and its green, baleful eyes glared hatred at us over its tawny shoulder. Bird life was abundant, especially the wading birds, stork, heron, and ibis gathering in little groups, blue, scarlet, and white, upon every log which jutted from the bank, while beneath us the crystal water was alive with fish of every shape and colour.

For three days we made our way up this tunnel of hazy green sunshine. On the longer stretches one could hardly tell as one looked ahead where the distant green water ended and the distant green archway began. The deep peace of this strange waterway was unbroken by any sign of man.

"No Indian here. Too much afraid. Curupuri," said Gomez.

"Curupuri is the spirit of the woods," Lord John explained. "It's a name for any kind of devil. The poor beggars think that there is something fearsome in this direction, and therefore they avoid it."

On the third day it became evident that our journey in the canoes could not last much longer, for the stream was rapidly growing more shallow. Twice in as many hours we stuck upon the bottom. Finally we pulled the boats up among the brushwood and spent the night on the bank of the river. In the morning Lord John and I made our way for a couple of miles through the forest, keeping parallel with the stream; but as it grew ever shallower we returned and reported, what Professor Challenger had already suspected, that we had reached the highest point to which the canoes could be brought. We drew them up, therefore, and concealed them among the bushes, blazing a tree with our axes, so that we should find them again. Then we distributed the various burdens among us—guns, ammunition, food, a tent, blankets, and the rest—and, shouldering our packages, we set forth upon the more laborious stage of our journey.

-Please answer the questions on the following page-

Questions

The following words are all underlined in the text above:

Beatific Abundant Merely Incessant
Obscure Tremulous Conceive Marvellous
Stupendous Laborious Satisfaction
Simultaneously Ignorant Solemn Formidable Gleaming Indescribable Majestic Menacing Luxuriant

1) In the boxes labelled A-E, write down a word from the box above which correctly matches the following definitions

A		requiring considerable time and effort
B		feeling or expressing blissful happiness
C		suggesting the presence of danger
D		shaking or quivering slightly
E		extremely impressive

2) For the following five sentences, pick a word from the box above to complete the sentence so that it makes sense

Mark was _____ to the fact that a surprise party had been planned for him.

Simon thought that the film was _____ as it was the most exciting he had seen in a while.

The squirrel had hidden its acorn in the most _____of places.

The King's palace was considered the most _____ in all the land.

The other high school proved to be a _____ opponent for Harriet's hockey team.

3) Using the clues given, unscramble the following anagrams to find a word from the box above

A) crabsinedible

Clue: this word means impossible to describe accurately

B) bandaunt

Clue: Synonyms of this word include: plentiful, lavish, ample and a lot of

C) lemons

Clue: Antonyms of this word include: cheerful, excited and happy

D) canesnits

Clue: This word is often used to describe something unpleasant which continues without stopping

E) icecoven

Clue: This word means to form or devise a plan or idea in your head

4) The following sentences all have a gap, choose a word from the box to fill the gap in the sentence. Write the sentence out correctly.

James apologised for making a mess as he was trying to help.

Her dress was made of the most silk.

Fred's task was exciting and tiring.

The window cleaner always ensured windows were left .

Molly felt a sense of after finishing her painting .

Revision Anagrams – Jumbled Letters

- This exercise uses words you have recently learnt.
- Use the clues to help you sort the letters out to find the answer.
- If you are not sure of a word (spelling or meaning) add it to your own personal vocabulary list.

Question	Clue	Answer
1. injectboo	Expression of disagreement.
2. minetoo	Otherwise known as someone's feelings.
3. auctioned	What people go to school for.
4. intentoat	Focussing or concentrating on something.
5. poxentice	Something that does not comply with a normal rule.
6. atflu	When someone is responsible for a collision.
7. cctena	The way people speak.
8. ream	A female horse.
9. elos	The only one.
10. deit	Something that his fastened with string or similar.
11. tuitionas	The location and surroundings of a place.
12. comandtociao	A place that someone lives in.
13. potionear	Surgery performed on a patient.
14. contourdip	The making of something.
15. pintoo	The power or freedom to choose.

Crossword Revision Puzzle

You have recently learnt all these words. Use the clues to solve the puzzle. Please revise any you are not sure of.

																	1		E	2	G
																				E
											3
							4	A	M		O									X
											L			5		6		7		T		8
									9					I				U				E
									R							A						C
									10		T	E	11	R		P	T	I	O			E
12	N	S			C				N
				13	U		C		I		N
													14	M				N	A			O	N
				15		R			A		E
									L			16	E	V			U		I		N
											17		18	P				I	T	I		N
											T
											19	G	I			T
											T		O
					20	F			C		I		N

Clues down

2. A period where people are calm. They might read or listen to music.
3. Several things grouped together.
5. Different levels of seating, or a level on a cake.
6. To cover something up.
7. Performing in an attempt to get a role in something.
8. Misleading.
9. The person in charge of a school.
11. The process of cooling food.
17. A place where you can get a train or bus.

Clues across

1. To appear or become visible.
4. Playing boisterously, like horses
10. Causing a break in something.
12. A close look at something.
13. A place where two things join or meet such as roads or railway routes.
14. The ability to form mental images.
15. A section of a train.
16. A complete circular movement of one object around another.
18. A ghostly figure.
19. Similar to being upset or disturbed.
20. Being caring towards someone or something.

VERBAL REASONING VARIETY TEST 4

Marks

1. Inside the brackets write the two letters which will end the first word and begin the second.

   P I N (.....) E A T .....

2. Complete this analogy.

   TEAR is to SORROW as SMILE is to ....

3. Underline the word which cannot be made from some or all of the letters of the word DECORATION, using each letter not more than once.

   TRAINED CREATED TRACED REACTION DOCTRINE .....

4. Which letter of the alphabet is immediately before the third vowel? ....

5. Write one word to continue this series.

   Specify, spy pungent, put appliance, ...

6. Write the next two letters in this series.

   LG MF NE OD ....

7. Arrange these words in alphabetical order by writing 1,2,3,4 or 5 inside the brackets:
   decease ( ) deceive ( ) decay ( ) decent ( ) decathlon ( ) .....

8. Inside the brackets write the word of four letters which will complete all five words.

   . . . . come . . . . board . . . . arm . . . . cast . . . . coat (. . . .) .....

9. Underline the word which is opposite in meaning to the word in capitals.

   ARTIFICIAL false obscure cheap genuine strange .....

10. In a certain code GTUYWRH stands for OUTSIDE. What would TEDIOUS be in the same code? .....

    (.....)

11. Underline the word which does not fit in with the others.

    kitten hind tadpole foal calf duckling .....

12. Write the word which has both these meanings.

    (a) a male adult sheep
    (b) to drive into or push into (.....) .....

13. If 4353683 means DESERVE, then 5383634 means ....

Marks

14. Underline the two words which are similar in meaning.

caution disaster calamity ramble valour ……

15. Inside the brackets, write the word which will finish the unfinished word.

To trans_____ is carry goods or people from one place to another. ……
(……)

16 Write the word which can be made from some or all of the letters in the word 0VERSIGHT, using each letter not more than once.

GROVEL THRIVED WEIGHT SOUGHT STROVE (……) ……

17. In the sentence below, four consecutive letters spell a word meaning 'a part of the school year'. Write this word inside the brackets.

……

It is his first day so the new waiter might be a bit slow (. ……)

18. Rearrange the letters of the word in capitals to form a word corresponding to the given meaning.

GRAB: To boast or show off. (……) ……

19. Write the words which can be formed by rearranging the first, second, fourth, fifth, seventh and ninth letters of the word CHOREOGRAPH
(……) ……

20. The same three letters are in all the words below. Make a word from them.
LOCKSMITH TOPPLE LOCATION OUTLOOK MOSTLY
(……) ……

21. On the dotted line write the word which completes the sentence and which rhymes with the word in capitals

LAW: He watched the eagle …… above the clouds ……

22. Underline the two words which should change places in order that the sentence below should be correct.

He drove the car because he crashed too fast. ……

23. Notice how the second word of each pair is formed from the first, then write the missing word.

realm, ram prime, pie court, …… ……

24. In the space write the missing word, which is formed by rearranging the letters of the word underlined.

While trimming her …… with the scissors she cut her finger. ……

25. Form a word from the letters which remain after the word MELODY has been made from the letters of the two words DEFY and LOOM.

(……) ……

VERBAL REASONING

CEM STYLE MULTIPLE CHOICE TEST

Name:
Date of Birth:
Today's Date:

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY BEFORE STARTING.

- This short test contains a reading comprehension exercise, followed by some additional questions on spelling and punctuation mistakes.
- Try to do the test in as close to exam conditions as possible.
- The time allowance is 40 minutes. Try to spend approximately 30 minutes on the reading comprehension exercise, and 10 minutes on the spelling and punctuation mistakes.
- Work as quickly as you can throughout the paper.
- Do move on if you cannot do a question but mark it to come back to.
- As this is multiple-choice make sure you have a go at every question. If you don't have a go, you can't get a mark.

ROBINSON CRUSOE – Daniel Defoe

This novel is about a man who finds himself living on a desert island after surviving a shipwreck. Your extract below is taken from the first part of the story, where Robinson Crusoe starts to build a home for himself on the island, using items left on the ship as well as things he finds on the island.

After I had been there about ten or twelve days, it came into my thoughts that I should lose my reckoning of time for want of books, and pen and ink, and should even forget the Sabbath days; but to prevent this, I cut with my knife upon a large post, in capital letters—and making it into a great cross, I set it up on the shore where I first landed—"I came on shore here on the 30th September 1659."

Upon the sides of this square post I cut every day a notch with my knife, and every seventh notch was as long again as the rest, and every first day of the month as long again as that long one; and thus I kept my calendar, or weekly, monthly, and yearly reckoning of time.

In the next place, we are to observe that among the many things which I brought out of the ship, in the several voyages which, as above mentioned, I made to it, I got several things of less value, but not at all less useful to me, which I omitted setting down before; as, in particular, pens, ink, and paper, several parcels in the captain's, mate's, gunner's and carpenter's keeping; three or four compasses, some mathematical instruments, dials, perspectives, charts, and books of navigation, all which I huddled together, whether I might want them or no; also, I found three very good Bibles, which came to me in my cargo from England, and which I had packed up among my things; some Portuguese books also; and among them two or three Popish prayer-books, and several other books, all which I carefully secured. And I must not forget that we had in the ship a dog and two cats, of whose eminent history I may have occasion to say something in its place; for I carried both the cats with me; and as for the dog, he jumped out of the ship of himself, and swam on shore to me the day after I went on shore with my first cargo, and was a trusty servant to me many years; I wanted nothing that he could fetch me, nor any company that he could make up to me; I only wanted to have him talk to me, but that would not do. As I observed before, I found pens, ink, and paper, and I husbanded them to the utmost; and I shall show that while my ink lasted, I kept things very exact, but after that was gone I could not, for I could not make any ink by any means that I could devise.

And this put me in mind that I wanted many things notwithstanding all that I had amassed together; and of these, ink was one; as also a spade, pickaxe, and shovel, to dig or remove the earth; needles, pins, and thread; as for linen, I soon learned to want that without much difficulty.

This want of tools made every work I did go on heavily; and it was near a whole year before I had entirely finished my little pale, or surrounded my habitation. The piles, or stakes, which were as heavy as I could well lift, were a long time in cutting and preparing in the woods, and more, by far, in bringing home; so that I spent sometimes two days in cutting and bringing home one of those posts, and a third day in driving it into the ground; for which purpose I got a heavy piece of wood at first, but at last bethought myself of one of the iron crows; which, however, though I found it, made driving those posts or piles very laborious and tedious work. But what need I have been concerned at the tediousness of anything I had to do, seeing I had time enough to do it in? Nor had I any other employment, if that had been over, at least that I could foresee, except the ranging the island to seek for food, which I did, more or less, every day.

I now began to consider seriously my condition, and the circumstances I was reduced to; and I drew up the state of my affairs in writing, not so much to leave them to any that were to come after me—for I was likely to have but few heirs—as to deliver my thoughts from daily poring over them, and afflicting my mind; and as my reason began now to master my despondency, I began to comfort myself as well as I could, and to set the good against the evil, that I might have something to distinguish my case from worse; and I stated very impartially, like debtor and creditor, the comforts I enjoyed against the miseries I suffered, thus:—

Evil.	Good.
I am cast upon a horrible, desolate island, void of all hope of recovery.	But I am alive; and not drowned, as all my ship's company were.
I am singled out and separated, as it were, from all the world, to be miserable.	But I am singled out, too, from all the ship's crew, to be spared from death; and He that miraculously saved me from death can deliver me from this condition.
I am divided from mankind—a solitaire; one banished from human society.	But I am not starved, and perishing on a barren place, affording no sustenance.
I have no clothes to cover me.	But I am in a hot climate, where, if I had clothes, I could hardly wear them.
I am without any defence, or means to resist any violence of man or beast.	But I am cast on an island where I see no wild beasts to hurt me, as I saw on the coast of Africa; and what if I had been shipwrecked there?
I have no soul to speak to or relieve me.	But God wonderfully sent the ship in near enough to the shore, that I have got out as many necessary things as will either supply my wants or enable me to supply myself, even as long as I live.

Please answer the questions on the following page

Questions

Answer by circling the letter next to your chosen response.

1) Why does Robinson Crusoe carve a message into a wooden post in the first paragraph? Choose the most accurate statement:

   a) Because he wants to be rescued
   b) Because he is worried he will lose track of the days and weeks
   c) Because he likes carving things

2) What does this tell you about him as a character? Finish the sentence by choosing the most appropriate word from the list:

Robinson Crusoe is a ---------- man

   a) Clever
   b) Immature
   c) Unpractical
   d) Nice

3) Choose which six of these items Crusoe finds on the ship and brings ashore with him. Use the third paragraph to find your answers:

   a) Pens
   b) Ink
   c) three or four compasses
   d) clothes
   e) some mathematical instruments
   f) some food
   g) books of navigation
   h) three very good Bibles
   i) two very comfy pillows

4) How many animals come ashore with him? Choose the correct answer:

   a) Two animals; a dog and a cat
   b) Three animals; a dog and two cats
   c) Three animals; a cat and two dogs

5) There is one item Crusoe brings ashore with him from the ship that eventually runs out and cannot be replaced. What is it?

a) Food
b) Water
c) Ink
d) Aftershave

6) Crusoe goes on to list more items he really needed whilst on the island. Which three of the following tools does he wish he had with him?

a) Spade
b) Bucket
c) Hammer
d) Pickaxe
e) Screwdriver
f) Shovel

7) How long does it take Robinson Crusoe to build his camp on the island? Read around line 30 for your answer:

a) Three months
b) Half a year
c) Almost two years
d) Almost a year

8) What does Crusoe do every day on the island? Read around line 35 for your answer and choose one response from the selection below:

a) Look for signs of other life
b) Search for food
c) Sunbathe and read books
d) Go swimming

9) Why does Crusoe create a list of the good and evil aspects of his new life on the desert island? Choose the least likely reason for him doing this:

a) To stop himself from thinking too much about his situation every day
b) To help himself feel more positive about his new life
c) For comfort
d) So people find it when he is gone
e) To help him see that things could be worse

10) Read Crusoe's list. Why is he glad to not be deserted in Africa? Choose the correct answer:

a) Because the weather in Africa is more severe
b) Because it would be more difficult to be rescued from Africa
c) Because there are dangerous wild beasts in Africa

11) By reading this list we also learn that Crusoe was the only survivor of the shipwreck. How did all the other ship's company die? Choose one answer:

a) They drowned
b) They were killed by pirates
c) They were scared to death

12) What is the weather like on this island? Using Crusoe's list, choose which quote is correct:

a) I am in a cold climate, I could desperately do with clothes to keep me warm
b) But I am in a hot climate, where, if I had clothes, I could hardly wear them
c) But I am in an unpredictable climate, if I had clothes they would only be useful half of the time

13) Looking back over the extract, who or what is Robinson Crusoe's only companion as far as we know? Choose one answer:

a) The bird
b) The boy
c) The dog
d) The trees

14) How long has he been on the island before he decides to carve his message into a post? Choose one answer:

a) Around a year
b) Ten or twelve days
c) A month exactly

15) Which two of these adjectives does Robinson Crusoe use to describe the island in his list? Choose the two correct words:

a) Horrible
b) Lonely
c) Quiet
d) Desolate

16) Who or what does he thank for surviving the shipwreck? Choose one response:

a) Himself
b) God
c) The dog

17) What was the date when Crusoe first arrived on the island? Choose the correct answer:

a) 30th September 1629
b) 30th September 1569
c) 30th September 1659
d) 30th November 1659

18) Crusoe mentions how the work he had to do on the island became very tedious. Choose the word which means the same as tedious:

a) Enjoyable
b) Easy
c) Exciting
d) Boring

19) 'As I observed before, I found pens, ink, and paper' (line 22) What kind of words are 'pens', 'ink' and 'paper'?

a) verbs
b) adjectives
c) proper nouns
d) common nouns

20) …'made driving those posts or piles very laborious and tedious work' (line 34) 'laborious' and 'tedious' are both examples of what kind of words?

a) adjectives
b) verbs
c) adverbs
d) nouns

21) 'despondency' means what?

a) anger
b) frustration
c) helplessness
d) intelligence

22) If you were 'poring', what would you be doing?

a) pouring a drink
b) crying
c) thinking deeply
d) shouting

The Lost World

In this passage there are some spelling mistakes. On each numbered line there is either one mistake, two mistakes or no mistakes. Each line is divided into groups of words with a letter underneath. If there is a mistake, ring the correct letter(s). If there is no mistake ring X.

23) The very next day we did actually make our start upon this remarkable expidition.

A B C D X

24) We found that all our posessions fitted very easily into the two canoes, and we

A B C D X

25) divided our personnelle, six in each, taking the ovious precaution in the interests of

A B C D X

26) piece of putting one Professor into each canoe. Personally, I was with

A B C D X

27) Challenger, who was in a beetific humour, moving about as one in a silent ecstasy.

A B C D X

In the following sentences, there are either one or two mistakes in punctuation. Rewrite each sentence using the correct punctuation in the space provided.

28) I love: apples, pears, strawberries and pineapple.

_____

29) Charlie's dads' house is right next to his only sisters' flat.

_____

30) The recipe needed, butter flour sugar fruit eggs salt and baking powder.

_____

31) The smoothie contained: apples, raspberries and strawberries.

_____

32) Can we go to the park? asked John.

_____

ANSWERS - COMPLETE VOCABULARY – PART 16

Opposites Revision

flow friend/ally never foul-play

The dwarf was very short.
The experiment was a failure.
The words on the paper were very bold.

entrance multiply difficult

Homophones

1/ gambol
2/ rap
3/ sea
4/ sole
5/ wood
6/ see
7/ tear
8/ would 9/ tied, tide
10/ raise, rays

Apostrophes

boys' blackbirds'
girls'
monkeys'
computers'
teachers'
soldiers'
miners'
photographers'
spectators'
Example – answer could vary

The women's gloves are brown in colour and made of leather.
The children's paddling pool is full of water and very cold.
The policemen's whistles are very loud when they blow them.

Revision Anagrams

1. Objection
2. Emotion
3. Education
4. Attention
5. Exception
6. Fault
7. Accent
8. Mare
9. Sole
10. Tied
11. Situation
12. Accommodation
13. Operation
14. Production
15. Option

Crossword Revision Puzzle

Down

2. Relaxation
3. Collection
5. Tier
6. Wrap
7. Audition
8. Deception
9. Principal
11. Refrigeration
15. Station

Across

1. Emerge
4. Gambol
10. Interruption
12. Inspection
13. Junction
14. Imagination
15. Carriage
16. Revolution
18. Apparition
19. Agitation
20. Affection

Spelling Letter Patterns

Exercise 1

One day last summer, Mr Jones, the manager, called for me. PRODUCTION in the factory was down, and he took EXCEPTION to this. We had a CONVERSATION about the SITUATION and he asked me to carry out an INSPECTION . During my EXAMINATION I visited the ACCOMMODATION where the workers went for RELAXATION. I could tell that the air CONDITIONING was not working because the room was very warm. When the workers returned to their work STATIONS they were too sleepy to pay ATTENTION. This was causing INTERRUPTIONS in the flow of PRODUCTION . The only OPTION was to get the air CONDITIONING OPERATIONAL again.

Exercise 2

1. Relaxation
2. Refrigeration
3. Objection

Exercise 3

1. Agitation
2. Accommodation
3. Emotion
4. Revolution

Exercise 4

1. Examination
2. Situation
3. Conversation
4. Junction
5. Inspection

Paired Reading

1a) laborious
b) beatific
c) menacing
d) tremulous
e) stupendous

2a) ignorant
b) marvellous
c) obscure
d) majestic
e) formidable

3a) indescribable
b) abundant
c) solemn
d) incessant
e) conceive

4)
James apologised for making a mess as he was merely trying to help
Her dress was made of the most luxuriant silk Fred's task was simultaneously exciting and tiring
The window cleaner always ensured windows were left gleaming
Molly felt a sense of satisfaction after finishing her painting

Variety Test 4

1. CH
2. happiness, joy
3. CREATED
4. H
5. ape
6. PC QB
7. 3,4,2,5,1
8. over
9. GENUINE
10. UHRWGTY
11. hind
12. ram
13. SEVERED
14. disaster calamity
15. port
16. STROVE
17. term
18. BRAG
19. CHARGE
20. LOT
21. soar
22. drove crashed
23. cut
24. fringe (tricky one!)
25. OF

Robinson Crusoe

1) b
2) a
3) a, b, c, e, g and h
4) b
5) c
6) a, d and f
7) d
8) b
9) e
10) c
11) a
12) b
13) c
14) b
15) a and d
16) b
17) c
18) d
19) d
20) a

21) c
22) c

Spelling mistake answers

23) d - expedition
24) b - possessions
25) a - personnel, c - obvious
26) a - peace
27) b - beatific

Punctuation mistake answers

28) I love apples, pears, strawberries and pineapple. (There should not be a colon as the phrase before it cannot stand alone)

29) Charlie's dad's house is right next to his only sister's flat. (The apostrophe cannot be at the end of 'dads' or 'sisters' as there is only one dad and one sister. It should go before the s to show possession)

30) The recipe needed butter, flour, sugar, fruit, eggs, salt and baking powder. (There should be commas separating the items in a list. There is no need for the comma after 'needed'.)

31) The smoothie contained apples, raspberries and strawberries. (A colon cannot be used as the phrase before it cannot stand alone)

32) "Can we go to the park?" asked John. (This sentence is missing speech marks)