I. Ian Beck's school work for marking

I think that football is a beautifull game. Watching a skillful passige of play by my team is a wonderfull site. It is thrilling to see an artfull player dribling the ball passed the opposing defenders and then beeting the gaolkeeper. Every team strives for success so that it can fullfil the exspectations of it's supporters.

I also think it can be an ugly game. Some footballers are very aggresive and they break the rules willfully. This is anoying and wasteful. Dangerous tackles can cause painfull injuries and I hate seeing a player being carried of on a strecher. Especialy if he is one of my team!

Move a letter to make two new words

These questions are a test of vocabulary and spelling. Students with a wider vocabulary will perform better. Don't forget, as well as practising your technique you should also work to widen your vocabulary.

The question

Move one letter from the word on the left into the word on the right to make two new words.

drain iced

The answer

rain diced

Technique

Very often you will find you can get to the answer with a quick glance.

If not, then you need to work methodically through.

The key point to remember is that when you remove a letter you still need the word on the left to make sense. DO NOT THINK ABOUT THE RIGHT HAND WORD UNTIL YOU ARE SURE WHICH LETTER YOU CAN TAKE FROM THE WORD ON THE LEFT.

So in this case:

drain – D = Rain – Possible

drain – R = Dain – Possible

drain – A = Drin – No

drain – I = Dran – No

drain – N = Drai – No

So the two options are D and R.

Next try and fit these into 'ICED' to make a new word.

Move a letter to make two new words

Trying 'R' the options are RICED, IRCED, ICRED, ICERD, ICEDR – None of which are words. So the new word must be formed using 'D'.

The options are DICED, IDCED, ICDED, ICEDD. DICED is the answer.

Where vocabulary is weak and pupils are unsure in this case, their two possibilities might be RICED and DICED.

In this case they will need to opt for one or the other but will do so having gone through a process to narrow their options.

Move a letter to make two new words

Now try these questions:

Move one letter from the word on the left and put it into the word on the right. Two new words should be created.

1)	cream	pins
2)	shave	oar
3)	pleat	how
4)	spare	trip
5)	slate	barn
6)	aural	mode
7)	reach	band
8)	greed	rein
9)	could	sop
10)	close	hill

THE SECRET GARDEN – Frances Hodgson Burnett

The extract is taken from a story about a girl called Mary who is orphaned and sent to live with her uncle in Yorkshire, having been living in India with her parents. Her uncle's home is a huge old manor house with acres of land. Mary soon hears from the servants of the house about a secret garden somewhere in the grounds of the manor, and she eventually finds it for herself.

Mary skipped round all the gardens and round the orchard, resting every few minutes. At length she went to her own special walk and made up her mind to try if she could skip the whole length of it. It was a good long skip and she began slowly, but before she had gone half-way down the path she was so hot and breathless that she was obliged to stop. She did not mind much, because she had already counted up to thirty. She stopped with a little laugh of pleasure, and there, lo and behold, was the robin swaying on a long branch of ivy. He had followed her and he greeted her with a chirp. As Mary had skipped toward him she felt something heavy in her pocket strike against her at each jump, and when she saw the robin she laughed again.

"You showed me where the key was yesterday," she said. "You ought to show me the door today; but I don't believe you know!"

The robin flew from his swinging spray of ivy on to the top of the wall and he opened his beak and sang a loud, lovely trill, merely to show off. Nothing in the world is quite as adorably lovely as a robin when he shows off–and they are nearly always doing it.

Mary Lennox had heard a great deal about Magic in her Ayah's stories, and she always said that what happened almost at that moment was Magic.

One of the nice little gusts of wind rushed down the walk, and it was a stronger one than the rest. It was strong enough to wave the branches of the trees, and it was more than strong enough to sway the trailing sprays of untrimmed ivy hanging from the wall. Mary had stepped close to the robin, and suddenly the gust of wind swung aside some loose ivy trails, and more suddenly still she jumped toward it and caught it in her hand. This she did because she had seen something under it–a round knob which had been covered by the leaves hanging over it. It was the knob of a door.

She put her hands under the leaves and began to pull and push them aside. Thick as the ivy hung, it nearly all was a loose and swinging curtain, though some had crept over wood and iron. Mary's heart began to thump and her hands to shake a little in her delight and excitement. The robin kept singing and twittering away and tilting his head on one side, as if he were as excited as she was. What was this under her hands which was square and made of iron and which her fingers found a hole in?

It was the lock of the door which had been closed ten years and she put her hand in her pocket, drew out the key and found it fitted the keyhole. She put the key in and turned it. It took two hands to do it, but it did turn.

And then she took a long breath and looked behind her up the long walk to see if anyone was coming. No one was coming. No one ever did come, it seemed, and she took another long breath, because she could not help it, and she held back the swinging curtain of ivy and pushed back the door which opened slowly–slowly.

Then she slipped through it, and shut it behind her, and stood with her back against it, looking about her and breathing quite fast with excitement, and wonder, and delight.

She was standing inside the secret garden.

It was the sweetest, most mysterious-looking place any one could imagine. The high walls which shut it in were covered with the leafless stems of climbing roses which were so thick that they were matted together. Mary Lennox knew they were roses because she had seen a great many roses in India. All the ground was covered with grass of a wintry brown and out of it grew clumps of bushes which were surely rose-bushes if they were alive. There were numbers of standard roses which had so spread their branches that they were like little trees. There were other trees in the garden, and one of the things which made the place look strangest and loveliest was that climbing roses had run all over them and swung down long tendrils which made light swaying curtains, and here and there they had caught at each other or at a far-reaching branch and had crept from one tree to another and made lovely bridges of themselves. There were neither leaves nor roses on them now and Mary did not know whether they were dead or alive, but their thin grey or brown branches and sprays looked like a sort of hazy mantle spreading over everything, walls, and trees, and even brown grass, where they had fallen from their fastenings and run along the ground. It was this hazy tangle from tree to tree which made it all look so mysterious. Mary had thought it must be different from other gardens which had not been left all by themselves so long; and indeed it was different from any other place she had ever seen in her life.

Please answer the questions on the following page

Questions

Answer by circling the letter next to your chosen response.

1) The robin guides Mary towards the door of the secret garden, but what did he lead her to find the day before? Choose the correct item:

   a) The map to the garden
   b) The key

Find the Mistakes - I

beautiful skilful
I think that football is a beautifull game. Watching a skillful passage wonderful sight passige of play by my team is a wonderfull site. It is thrilling to artful dribbling past see an artfull player dribling the ball passed the opposing beating goalkeeper defenders and then beeting the gaolkeeper. Every team strives fulfil expectations its for success so that it can fullfil the exspectations of it's supporters.

I also think it can be an ugly game. Some footballers are very aggressive wilfully annoying aggresive and they break the rules willfully. This is anoying and painful wasteful. Dangerous tackles can cause painfull injuries and I hate off stretcher. Especially seeing a player being carried of on a strecher. Especialy if he is one of my team!

Punctuation mistake answers

30) The two boys' rucksacks were found in the forest. (The apostrophe should be at the end of the word as there are two boys)

31) I can see only one thing: the old farmhouse. (The colon needs to be after the word 'thing' so that the phrase before the colon would make sense alone)

32) My favourite books are, 'Harry Potter' and 'The Hunger Games'. (A colon cannot be used as the phrase before it does not make

33) sense alone. A comma should be used instead.)

34) The children's books and pencil cases were put in their bags. (The books and pencil cases belong to the children, so only one apostrophe is needed. The bags are possessions, so an apostrophe is not needed)
